

Development process

HTML

The development process started by setting up the HTML on each page, this was fairly straightforward, as having already created a stylesheet for the grid system it was very simple to lay things out.

SASS

For this project, SASS was used, having previously practiced SASS it was simple enough to get started with and was very beneficial as it enabled me to use variables to store things such as colours of fonts that I would be using very frequently.

Javascript/JQuery

Having used JQuery in previous projects this was somewhat comfortable for me, however, originally the intention was to use Vue JS for some areas of the site, such as the animated progress bars, dropdown menu and lightbox for the images on the designs pages, however, due to time restrictions it was too difficult to become comfortable enough with Vue to add these in, so instead vanilla javascript and jquery was used. In the future I would like to experiment more with Vue as well as strengthening my knowledge on Javascript.

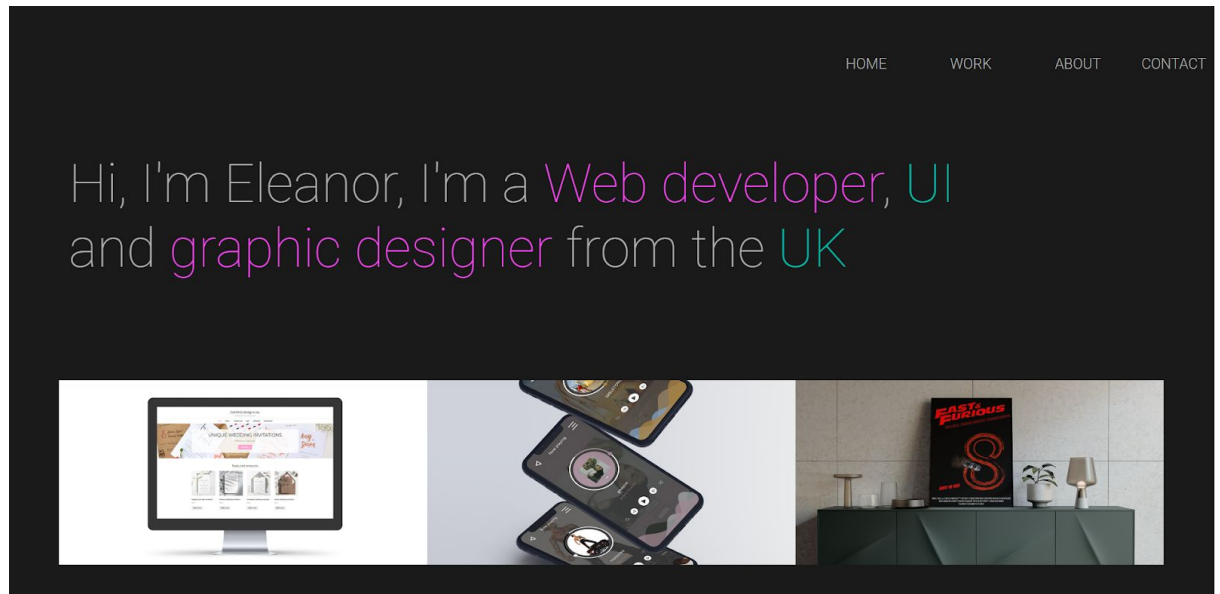

PHP

PHP was used to create the functionality of the contact form, as well as incorporating the ReCaptcha API. The contact form aspect was straightforward as I had done this on previous projects. Incorporating the API however was slightly more challenging yet successful in the end.

Testing

Links

To test whether links are working the simplest option was to go through and click them on every page, first attempt I had missed some links so after going back and adding them in everything was working as it should be.

Responsiveness

Tested the site on different devices and using the responsiveness option in inspect element on chrome, on top of this, used Google's mobile friendly checker which confirmed the site was mobile friendly.

The main section is titled "Test results". It features a green checkmark icon and the text "No loading issues" with a link to "VIEW DETAILS". To the right, there are tabs for "Rendered page", "HTML", and "SCREENSHOT".

On the left side, a box indicates the test was performed on "10 Jan 2020 at 13:44". Below this, a large green banner states "Page is mobile friendly" with the subtext "This page is easy to use on a mobile device". Underneath, there is a section for "Additional resources" with three links: "Open site-wide mobile usability report", "Find out more about mobile-friendly pages", and "Post comments or questions to our discussion group".

I also tested the site on different browsers to ensure everything was looking as it should, and this was all running smoothly.

Speed

After taking the GTmetrix speed test my site received a C which is ok. At first it received an E however after optimizing the images the score increased.
